Designing for change: The poetic potential of responsive ... In this paper I define as poetic those functions of responsive architecture whose purpose is not primarily instrumental. The meaning of poetics can be linked to that of ornament, traditionally an element of architecture without instrumental purpose or whose architectural significance had outlived an original purpose. The Future of Architecture: Climate-Responsive Design ... Today's architects and builders are increasingly focused on how to create structures that have less impact on the natural environment. Climate-responsive architecture is a design practice centered on creating buildings that function in lockstep with the local climate, not in spite of it. It is simple in concept but more complex in execution.
